Market Review

The Malaysian equity market recorded a mixed performance in March with the FBM100 Index fell 0.6% while the large cap FBMKLCI Index rose 0.4%. Global Foreign funds continued to be small net seller in March (-RM61.6mil), the second consecutive month of selling where they sold RM1.1bil in February. That said, foreign funds were still net buyers of RM2.2bil in year to date. Other than steep tariffs on imported steel and aluminium, U.S President Donald Trump proposed to impose tariffs US$50.0 bil worth of Chinese imports. China retaliated back with proposed tariffs on US$50.0 bil worth of imports. The Federal Reserve raised interest rates as widely expected following its meeting on March 21 and stuck to its projection for two more rate hikes this year.

The best performer for the period was the Consumer Index, led by Nestle, F&N and IHH. This could be due to investors switching to defensive sector given heightened market volatility. The Technology Index was the worst performer for the period. The trade war fears together with the selloff in U.S. technology added pressure to semiconductor related stocks.

Market Outlook

Key takeaway from Bank Negara Malaysia's Annual Report 2017 released in March was the revision in official 2018 real GDP growth forecast to 5.5% - 6.0%, from 5.0%-5.5% made in October 2017, supported by the strengthening of global conditions and the continued growth in domestic demand. BNM also trimmed official inflation forecast to 2.0-3.0% (previously 2.5-3.5%). This supports a stay of OPR view for the remaining year.

The current trade frictions between the US and China are not expected to escalate into a full-blown trade war as that will stoke inflation and lower the growth potentials for both countries. Government officials from both sides have been indicating openness to discussion on avoiding these trade barriers. Despite heightened volatility, equity markets will be supported by rising corporate earnings and a gradual removal of monetary policy accommodation by most central banks. On the local front, investors remain cautiously optimistic on equities as the general elections draw closer.
