Market Review

The Government Investment Issues ("GII") yield curve shifted lower in November 2025, helped by decent onshore participation across primary auctions. Smaller than expected issuance size for the 7-year MGS and 20-year Government Investment Issue ("GII") increased the likelihood of a downsized final auction of the year in December 2025 thus providing some tailwind to the market. BNM's Monetary Policy Committee ("MPC") meeting was a non-event as they kept the Overnight Policy Rate ("OPR") unchanged at 2.75%, as expected.

U.S. equities were mostly flat in November, with the S&P 500 inching up 0.10% despite strong earnings, while the Nasdaq fell 1.50% amid concerns over stretched AI valuations and slower monetization relative to planned capex, despite Nvidia delivered strong quarterly results. In Asia, the MSCI Asia ex-Japan Index dropped 2.90%, dragged down by tech-heavy markets as Korea's KOSPI slid 4.40% and Taiwan's benchmark declined 2.20% following corrections in AI and semiconductor stocks. China also posted losses, with the MSCI China Index down 2.40% after an unexpected contraction in factory activity.

The FBMS ("Index") fell 2.3% Month-on-Month ("MoM") to close at 11,851 pts in November 2025. The Index outperformed the MSCI Asia ex Japan Index, which fell 4.2% MoM in Malaysian Ringgit ("MYR") terms over the same period. Foreign investors remained net sellers of Malaysian equities but reduced their net sell by 58% MoM to MYR1.12billion while local institutions were net buyers of MYR1.1billion during the month.

Market Outlook

While external risks persist, Malaysia's proactive policy measures and resilient domestic fundamentals provide a constructive backdrop for the local market heading into 2026. A dovish global monetary stance, particularly from the U.S. Federal Reserve, is likely to support ringgit and foreign inflows. BNM will likely keep the OPR unchanged as it awaits more economic data to guide its next policy move. Volatility is likely to persist in the near term as markets react to further developments in trade negotiations and key economic data releases. We continue to adjust the portfolio proactively to manage risks and capture opportunities as they arise.
