Market Review

The Malaysian Government Securities (“MGS”) yield curve shifted lower in May 2024, tracking a recovery in the United States (“US”) Treasuries market amidst the Federal Reserve’s (“Fed”) decision to keep the Fed Funds rate on hold and a series of softer economic data releases where both Consumer Price Index and Personal Consumption Expenditure data for April 2024 came in below expectations. On the domestic front, Bank Negara Malaysia’s (“BNM”) decision to keep the Overnight Policy Rate unchanged at its Monetary Policy Committee (“MPC”) meeting on 9 May 2024 which although widely expected, supported sentiment during the month. The MGS market also benefited from robust domestic demand from local investors with a healthy appetite for duration as evidenced by the high bid-to-cover (“BTC”) ratio observed at the long-end government security auctions.

Foreign funds net bought MYR5.5billion in May 2024, with cumulative flows turned positive at MYR1.5billion Year-to-date (“YTD”). Regionally, the local markets of Indonesia and Thailand also saw net inflows.

Global market closed with a positive note in May 2024 with both the S&P500 Index and MSCI Europe Index rose by 4.96% and 3.42% respectively, mainly contributed by the continued optimism over Artificial Intelligence (AI) related stocks. Asian market rose in May 2024 as well with MSCI Asia Ex-Japan Index grew by 1.29% in United States Dollar (“USD”) terms, mainly contributed by Taiwanese and China market.

The FBMKLCI (“Index”) rose 1.31% Month-on-Month (“MoM”) to close at 1,596.68pts in May 2024. The Index outperformed the MSCI Asia ex Japan Index, which fell 0.06% MoM in Malaysian Ringgit (“MYR”) terms over the same period. Foreign investors turned net buyers of Malaysian equities amounting to MYR1.5 billion while local institutions became net sellers of MYR978 million during the month.

Market Outlook

All eyes will be on the Fed’s potential pivot to interest rate cuts amid sign of a slower economic growth and easing inflation. Although inflation continues to moderate, recent US economic data releases are suggestive of a resilient US economy and labour market. As such, we are of the opinion that the US Federal Reserve (“Fed”) will likely proceed carefully to avoid any premature rate cuts which could fuel reflation risks. Domestically, Bank Negara Malaysia may keep its Overnight Policy Rate unchanged in the coming meetings as it observes the domestic inflation trend. These factors are supportive of the domestic bond market while the market observes developments on global central banks’ monetary policy decisions, geopolitical risks, and the US presidential elections. We are cautiously optimistic on the equity and fixed income market in the near term.
