Market Review

Government Investment Issue (“GII”) rallied slightly in June 2018, unlike MGS, which we believe it was largely due to oversold position in the last three months that has caused the valuation to cheapen. However, the overall sentiment was capped by the absence of clarity in policy from the domestic government, coupled with the expectation of tightening financial condition in the US and Eurozone. On a side note, USDMYR weakened by 1.5% against the greenback to close the month at MYR4.0385

Meanwhile, the Malaysia equity market fell in June, with the FBM100 Index contracting 1.6% MoM on concerns over the escalating trade tension and sell-off in emerging market equities given the USD strength. Key laggards were the Finance and Plantation Index, which fell 3.9% and 3.1%, respectively. Telecom stocks such as Telekom Malaysia (-15.3%) and Axiata (-12.8%) took a beating due to the announcement by the Communications and Multimedia Minister on a 25% reduction in broadband prices by end-2018. After being the worst performing sector in May, the Construction Index rebounded 2.6% in June possibly on newsflow that the Government may go ahead with infrastructure projects like the East Coast Rail Link, albeit at a lower cost. Foreigners net sold MYR4.9 billion, bringing YTD net outflow to MYR6.8 billion. On the corporate front, key news included the resignation of BNM Governor Tan Sri Muhammad Ibrahim and Telekom Malaysia's Managing Director and Group CEO Datuk Seri Mohammed Shazalli Ramly, and the Election Commission's approval for Tenaga to continue the implementation of the Imbalance Cost Pass-Through for 2H18

Market Outlook

In the near term, uncertainties remain, surrounding issues like formation of new Malaysian government and its policies going forward, trade disputes between major economies and the pace of Fed fund rate hike. That being said, the smooth transition of power and the new ruling coalition's promise of better governance and accountability would bode well for the domestic business environment over the long term.

On the foreign front, the increasing threats of trade protectionism have renewed volatility in the global equity markets. Coupled with higher oil prices, rising bond yields and a stronger dollar, investors will remain cautious especially in the emerging markets (“EM”) equities. These risks have the potential to end the period of easy monetary policy in the emerging countries. However, healthy EPS growth and the recent sell-off left EM equities' valuation relatively attractive compared to the developed markets.
