Market Review

Malaysian Government Securities continued to weaken in Oct 2019 against the backdrop of global risk-off mode and softer domestic sentiment. Heavy sell-off was seen across the curve with yields rising by 5 to 26 bps, following the positive developments in the US-China trade negotiations and optimism on Brexit deal. Meanwhile, domestic sentiment was dampened by fading expectations of Bank Negara Malaysia's ("BNM") easing stance. MYR strengthened by 0.23% against the greenback to close the month at MYR4.1782.

The FBM100 rallied 0.71% MoM, tracking U.S. stocks which advanced to a fresh record high after the Federal Reserve cut interest rates and signalled it was unlikely to move in either direction in the near-term as inflation remains under control. Foreigners were net sellers of the local market with a net outflow of USD116 million during the month, bringing year-to-date net outflow to USD2 billion.

Meanwhile, Asian equity markets rose higher in October due to a possible mini deal being struck between the US and China, and ongoing monetary easing by global central banks. China's economic data remain mixed as third quarter GDP growth slowed to 6% YoY and imports fell in September but industrial production and retail sales improved. Elsewhere, Taiwan was the best performing market amid a strong run in the technology sector as earnings expectations for the sector were revised upwards.

Market Outlook

In its recent Monetary Policy Committee meeting, BNM maintained the Overnight Policy Rate at 3.00% and reiterated on domestic demand being the driver to growth, supported by stable labour market and wage growth. While global geopolitical events will continue to dominate headlines, a more data-dependent monetary policy approach for major central banks is expected to drive rate volatility. The bond market shall be further supported by ample liquidity in the financial system.

On the equity front, Trade tension remains high with US President Donald Trump unwilling to back down from his tough stance on the trade talks with China. However, we are comforted that global central banks have turned more dovish and the Chinese government will be ready to implement more stimulus if needed to avoid a hard landing for its economy. Domestically, Malaysia remains under-owned by foreigners and has underperformed its regional peers on a year-to-date basis. We see potential support from the revival of infrastructure projects and potential relocation of activities to Malaysia as a result of the ongoing US-China trade spat.
