Market Review

Malaysian Government Securities rallied in Nov 2019 as yields generally weakened at the shorter and longer end of the curve amid rising global yields. In a surprise announcement, Bank Negara Malaysia lowered the Statutory Reserve Requirement Ratio from 3.50% to 3.00%, in order to maintain sufficient liquidity in the domestic financial system. MYR traded range bound against the greenback to close the month at MYR4.1778.

The FBM100 fell 1.86% MoM in November led by most index sectors amid weak results season. The local index underperformed the MSCI Asia Ex Japan Index, which rose 0.17% in MYR terms over the same period. Foreigners were net sellers of the local market with a net outflow of USD370m during the month, bringing year-to-date net outflow to USD2.4bn. Malaysia's 3Q GDP slowed to +4.4% YoY (2Q: +4.9%) on weaker private consumption and investment spending. While Bank Negara kept Overnight Policy Rate unchanged, it delivered a 50 bps Statutory Reserve Requirement cut in order to stimulate lending.

Meanwhile, the Asian equity markets inched up in November as investors reassess the developments in the ongoing trade dispute between the US-China. Towards month end, US President Trump passed the Hong Kong bill, which raised the geopolitical uncertainty and reversed the earlier optimism that a mini trade deal could be reached soon between the two countries.

Market Outlook

In its last Monetary Policy Committee meeting of the year, BNM maintained the Overnight Policy Rate at 3.00% and reiterated on domestic demand being the driver to growth, supported by stable labour market and wage growth. While global geopolitical events will continue to dominate headlines, a more data-dependent monetary policy approach for major central banks is expected to drive rate volatility. That said, the bond market shall be supported by ample liquidity in the financial system.

On the equity front, trade tension remains high with US President Donald Trump unwilling to back down from his tough stance on the trade talks with China. Meanwhile, global economic indicators have showed signs of stabilization. Domestically, Malaysia remains under-owned by foreigners and has underperformed its regional peers on a year-to-date basis. We see potential support from the revival of infrastructure projects and potential relocation of activities to Malaysia as a result of the ongoing US-China trade spat. We will remain vigilant to the constantly evolving market conditions and will adjust our strategy accordingly
